Intro to: Nature of Man--Poetry at the Arboretum

Being intentional about our time--and how we interact with our world (and our God) is not always easy. We will take a journey of reflection tonight with the prose of poetry juxtaposed in a setting of nature. What is our nature? What is the nature of man? In relation to the world and his God? We will look at three poems tonight--different in pentameter, style, and meaning--yet similar in themes. Spend 10-15 minutes on each work. Look at the guides, read to yourself, and then walk and reflect upon the meaning and how it relates to your experience. We will meet back here at 7:30 for discussion, drinks, and snacks…

A quick note about pentameter… There is a rhythm in which poetry is read… Do your best to try it out. The last poem, Your Laughter, was translated from Spanish into English, so it loses some of the rhythm…
